Requirements: Fully working EmbARK Pro version is required. Version Information: All versions are compatible with each other. Limitations: Some are basic limitations to keep it simple. Unknown Files: Yes Operating System: Windows XP, Windows Vista, Windows 7, Windows 8, Windows 10 Last Updated: May 16, 2020 File Version: 5.3.4.02, 12.9.2020 This invention relates to a screen device for an information processing terminal and, in particular, to a screen device which is useful for an information processing terminal having a function of selecting and displaying one or more screens displayed on the terminal's display screen, in such a way that, when an information processing terminal is moved to a position where it can be used, the screen device automatically brings a specified one of the screens to a position where it can be viewed. To efficiently use an information processing terminal which has a function of selecting and displaying a predetermined screen, in the case where the screen displayable on the terminal's display screen is limited to only a predetermined screen, it is desirable that the display screen be automatically moved to a position where the predetermined screen can be viewed. To this end, Japanese Unexamined Patent Application Publication No. 4-210349 discloses a conventional screen device. This screen device is comprised of a screen display section and a driving means. The screen display section is capable of displaying a plurality of screens. The driving means is capable of moving the screen display section to a position where a screen is to be displayed by detecting a state of operation of a user and, when such a position is reached, controlling the driving means to move the screen display section to the position. In the above-mentioned conventional screen device, however, the number of kinds of the screens which can be displayed on the screen display section is limited to a predetermined number. Therefore, when the user operates the terminal to change the state of operation or to select one of a plurality of kinds of information to be displayed, the user must select a screen by operating the terminal to set a predetermined function of the terminal to a desired screen, and only after the operation of setting the screen to be displayed has been completed, the screen display section is automatically moved to a position where the desired screen is displayed. Therefore, in the above-mentioned conventional screen device, the screen is limited to a screen which can be displayed according to a predetermined screen setting operation. Therefore, only screens which are prepared in advance can be displayed, and it is impossible to display a screen which is not prepared in advance, such as a screen received from the outside.
